Coronavirus- first Person to get it.

by Odhran Cullen

Once there was a man who was called Arthur. Arthur was father of a big family. Six girls and two boys. They were called Steve, Bill, Sally, Alice, Matilda, Emma, Sapphire and Adora. Arthur loved them all. His job was a waiter at a fancy hotel. He was paid 100 euro an hour. After work he would go to the posh private school his children attend. One day in the summer holidays the family decided to go to China. When they got to China they found a hotel there they booked twenty rooms. Then they went to the nearest restaurant they could find. Let's see the menu. "I'll have the bat," said Mr. Porky. "I'll have the horse meat stew," said Mrs Porky. "I'll have the foreign fish," said Steve. "I'll have the fish and chips," said Bill. "I'll have the chips and sausages," said Adora. "Me too," chorused Emma, Sally, Alice, Sapphire and Matilda. They all had a fine time eating and laughing. When they got back Mr. Porky said, "I do not feel well." (Because he had caught coronavirus from the bat he had eaten in the restaurant! Normally this would not have happened but the chef who cooked the bat was under a bit of pressure so he had accidentally underdone the bat.)

"I think you should get some rest and tomorrow you can book a plane home and go to our doctor," said Mrs Porky.

Next day Mr. Porky went to the airport. It was very busy Arthur/Mr. Porky kept coughing on everyone, which was spreading the virus. When he got home he booked an appointment with a doctor. He then went to bed.

The next day at the doctors, Arthur was ~~getting~~ examined. The doctor confirmed that he had a new illness called coronavirus!
